

CACHACA

Velho Barreiro

Cachaca story

Produced from sugar cane that was cultivated first in Asia, Persia and then in Sicily. In 327 before JC, Alexander Le Grand introduced it in Europe and Africa during the Persian Empire conquest.

Then, Portuguese set out to conquer Brazil with this famous drink in their galleons.

Since, Cachaca has become the national drink in Brazil and people consume it whatever the moment of the day either on Rio's beaches or Rio Janeiro barrios.

It is the genuine and warmly mind of the sugar cane.
